2 Read the title and introduction to the article (paragraph A). Which of the below do you expect to find in the article? Why?
   - reasons why we choose a passion
   - the effects of our hobbies on our brains
   - how science helps us feel motivated
   - ways in which our interests help us learn

3 Read the exam tip about paragraphs B and C. Answer the questions.

Exam tip: multiple choice

Writers don’t always express their attitudes or feelings openly but you can identify them by looking at the language they use. Ask these questions to help you:
1 Does the writer use any adjectives which express emotions (e.g. terrible, incredible, etc.)?
2 Does the writer use any comment adverbs (e.g. luckily, disappointingly, etc.)?
3 What do these adjectives/adverbs tell us about the writer’s attitude? Do they express anger, pessimism, surprise, etc.?

4 Read the article and choose the answer (A, B, C or D) which you think fits best according to the text.
   1 In paragraph B, the writer suggests that the nucleus accumbens directly contributes to people
      A feeling emotional.
      B developing strengths.
      C overcoming difficulties.
      D attempting a range of tasks.
   2 According to Dr Holmes in paragraph C, chemicals in our body stop us
      A participating in sport.
      B feeling discomfort.
      C experiencing pleasure.
      D getting injured.

3 The writer mentions Leonardo da Vinci to make the point that
   A good things come to brilliant people.
   B creative people do many activities.
   C clever people are passionate people.
   D successful people pursue their interests.

4 What does Dr Holmes suggest people do to make life positive?
   A set a goal and work towards it
   B copy other people’s hobbies
   C discover what interests them
   D identify what prevents achievement

5 Evidence connecting interests and happiness has been weak in research studies because
   A too few people were asked to complete the questionnaire.
   B participants assessed their own feelings of satisfaction.
   C the questionnaires were too complicated to complete.
   D they represented people who were already motivated.

6 The author is optimistic that future research will prove a link between passions and
   A a reduction in poor health.
   B an improvement in productivity.
   C a greater desire to be successful.
   D a better performance in a variety of tasks.

5 Find words or phrases in the article that mean the following.
   1 determination and energy to succeed (para A)
   2 great and unusual intelligence, ability or skill (para D)
   3 find by searching for a long time (para D)
   4 full of enthusiasm (para G)

Sum up

6 Work in pairs and discuss the questions.
   1 According to the article, what benefits can people gain from having a passion? Do you agree?
   2 How would you describe the writer’s overall attitude towards having a passion? Why?

Speak up

7 Work in groups and discuss the questions.
   1 How do your hobbies make you feel? Why?
   2 Do you think your hobbies help you to achieve more in other areas? Why? Why not?
   3 If you could only follow one passion in your life, what would it be?
The science of having passion

A We all know someone who has a passion in life – something they seem to live and breathe every day. Having a passion like this can give a person energy and drive, but why is this? What is the science behind people’s passions, and how can having a passion benefit us in our daily lives?

B Doing something we are passionate about has a surprising effect both on our brains and our body chemistry. The nucleus accumbens, an area of the brain which plays a central role in the human body’s reward system, lights up and then releases feel-good hormones into the bloodstream when we do something we love. This, in turn, gives us drive; it helps us to push through when things get hard because we’re so committed to the activity. It helps us to get extraordinary things done.

C One such astonishing thing is the ability to cope with physical problems that would normally prevent us from carrying on. According to clinical psychologist Dr David Holmes, passion, and the chemical response of our bodies when we feel it, can help us deal with enormous pain. This is undoubtedly the reason why, every now and then, sportspersons finish a match on top of the world only to later discover they’ve actually broken a bone halfway through. It’s only when their chemical responses to the joy of playing disappears that they realise what’s happened.

D One man who recognised the importance of passion was Leonardo da Vinci. Renowned for his many achievements, he wrote 500 years ago that: ‘It had long since come to my attention that people of accomplishment rarely sat back and let things happen to them. They went out and “happened to things”.’ Da Vinci ‘happened’ to plenty of things. He painted the Mona Lisa; in his journals were the ideas for inventions such as steam cannons and even helicopters. He was an anatomist, a sculptor and a musician. Although we think of someone like da Vinci as being driven by a force of genius, what he said was that truly successful and ambitious people like him make it their life’s work to follow their passions.

E According to Dr Holmes, we should all be attempting to make our passions an important part of our lives. He adds: ‘Passion is what can make a good day really great. To be happy, we need plenty of those.’ But it isn’t always easy. Passion is incredibly personal. You have to do something that has meaning to you as an individual – you can’t get it from following someone else’s passions or dreams, or by merely going through the motions. ‘For one person, that sense of satisfaction might come from completing a marathon; for another, it could be finally tracking down a first-edition book they have spent years searching for.’

F In recent years, researchers have been trying to prove whether a passion can lead to greater happiness but they have so far been unable to do so. This is down to the fact that participants in studies are usually asked to self-report their own emotions in questionnaires. Such self-assessment is a cheap and simple way to collect data, especially if you want to get information from a very large number of people. However, it relies on participants being honest, as well as interpreting levels of happiness and passion in the same way. So, although we might feel that having things we enjoy is beneficial, unfortunately, science hasn’t confirmed this yet.

G However, scientific techniques are improving as we speak, so hopefully one day researchers will be able to show that our passions affect not just our happiness but also our ability to do well in all aspects of our lives. We will hopefully discover that our passions allow us to feel more energised and able to cope with the stresses of everyday life. We may find out that our passions help us to cope with activities we typically don’t enjoy, allowing us to achieve more in a wider range of areas. Wouldn’t it be great if we could prove that spending your weekends on the football pitch could actually improve your maths grades? In the meantime, we’ll have to make do with knowing that our passions can provide the drive we need to get up and enjoy life.

   2 What challenges might you face when trying to pursue that dream? How will you overcome them?
   2 Read the news story. What do you think the words in bold mean? Check your ideas in a dictionary.
   Many gifted sportspeople have had to overcome problems to ultimately achieve their dreams and gain respect in their field. One common obstacle is a lack of access to good facilities and coaching expertise for children. Parents sometimes campaign through online petitions or even demonstrations, to get the funding they want for their children or force the local authority to compromise.

USE OF ENGLISH 1

1 Read the summary. What do the phrasal verbs in bold mean?

Development plays a hand in a child’s sporting success. A child too small to knock an opponent down in a football game won’t get picked for the team and may end up believing they’re no good and give in. Conversely, an early developer flourishes at first but may later fail to live up to expectations.

OVERCOMING FEAR on the way to SPORTS SUCCESS

To become a swimmer, Adam Peaty had to __________________ his biggest fear: water. He was so terrified of it that, at a young age, he refused to shower and even __________________ standing up in the bath rather than sitting. Despite screaming whenever he was taken for swimming lessons, he __________________ them __________________ and eventually went to the Olympic Games in Rio, where he __________________ winning two gold medals aged twenty-one.

Cliff diver Gary Hunt’s __________________ his fear of heights every time he competes. It’s hardly surprising as he must enter the water feet first from a twenty-seven-metre high platform or risk serious injury. Despite this, he hasn’t let his fear __________________ him __________________ in his career. He’s managed to __________________ stiff competition to win several championships.

Tennis player Rafael Nadal’s childhood coach knew he was afraid of storms, so he __________________ the idea of telling him the thunder gods would punish him if he didn’t play his best. It obviously worked.

Games have increased my intelligence.
It’s a misconception that annoys me.

Choose the correct adverbs to complete the collocations in the quotes. Which syllable in each collocation has the main stress?

I think gaming is accepted to be a mainstream activity these days. It’s impossible to ignore its popularity. The fact that games appear in mainstream media shows they’re not just for nerds!

I don’t think games are a good way for kids to spend time. Some are so designed they’re almost too real. When games are that modelled on the real world, they might confuse young kids. That’s why I don’t think they should be available.

Read the exam tip and the article below. How does the writer of the article answer the question in the title?

Exam tip: multiple-choice cloze
Read the text quickly before you fill in the gaps. Understanding the gist will help you make better choices.

Are hobby stereotypes dangerous?

Stereotypes exist everywhere and pastimes are no . If you’re a surfer, people assume the same thing – you’re relaxed but lazy. They think people who like cosplay – dressing up as a fictional character – should go out and find more friends; people who go to the gym love themselves and book lovers are boring, librarian types. But are these stereotypes just a bit of harmless fun or are they dangerous?

One way of answering this question is to consider whether such stereotypes influence a person’s decision to be friends with us or not. The truth is that it is unlikely as people mostly decide if they like us long before they find out what our interests are. However, our hobbies themselves may be influential. This is because our interests help to our character, and a person’s decision to be friends with us is based on that character. So, a hobby could indirectly prevent a friendship from forming but a stereotype is unlikely to.

WRITING

Power up

1. Work in pairs. Read the quote and discuss the questions below.

Young people spend so much time looking at a screen; they’re just not active anymore.

1. Do you agree or disagree with the view in the quote? Why?
2. Is it important for young people to be active?
Why/Why not?
3. If yes, whose responsibility is it to ensure this?
Why?

Plan on

2. Read the task. In pairs, add two more opinions related to each idea in the notes.

In your class you have listened to a radio debate about how to encourage young people to be more active. You have made the notes below:

Idea for encouraging young people to be more active:
- school sports
- youth clubs
- parental leadership

Some opinions expressed in the debate:
‘Only a few sports are offered at school so if teens don’t like these, they’re put off doing anything.’
‘There just aren’t enough local facilities for young people, so they end up staying at home.’
‘Parents don’t limit the time their children spend looking at a screen.’

Write an essay for your teacher discussing two of the ideas in your notes. You should explain which idea for encouraging young people to be more active is more effective, giving reasons in support of your answer.

You may, if you wish, make use of the opinions expressed in the debate, but you should use your own words as far as possible. Write your essay in 220–260 words.

3. Read the essay. Which two ideas from the notes has the writer used?
Does she include the opinions from the notes or her own ideas?
Do you agree with what she says? Why/Why not?

Many young people do regular activities that keep them fit, but with the growing popularity of online activities, some teenagers are becoming less active. Two potential ways of addressing this issue are to increase the variety of sports offered at school and to fund more youth clubs.

Offering a wider variety of sports at school is likely to be the best method of encouraging young people to be more active.
This is because currently, there are just a small number of sports offered, which do not engage everyone. The majority of the sports are team sports such as hockey. However, not everyone enjoys these so they stop playing. Offering activities such as yoga or T’ai Chi may tempt more people to do sport.

A second option is to provide more youth facilities locally.
As young people often stay home, the purpose is to allow more opportunities for young people to leave home and participate in arts and crafts and drama, as well as the kinds of sports mentioned above. These youth clubs encourage young people to be active while pursuing their interests and socialising with others. However, funding is required by local government to facilitate these ideas.

In conclusion, both schools and local government can courage young people to be more active through more sports being offered at school and more youth club activities.
The former will probably have greater success as all school students are required to do school sports, whereas youth clubs often attract younger teens. Older teens tend to feel they are uncool and stop attending.

Academic writers often don’t want to sound too sure of their opinions, so they use adverbs of frequency (e.g.1) , adverbs of certainty (e.g.2), modal verbs (e.g.3) and phrases like ‘be likely to’ or 4 to make them sound less definite.

   - organised your ideas clearly into paragraphs?
   - given reasons for your opinions using appropriate phrases?
   - used language to make opinions sound less definite?
   - used formal language (e.g. no contractions)?
